

Case no. 10-61455-

May 7, 10

I am sending a copy of papers that were filed in the early part of 2009. They were filed by my ex-husband to request permission to claim our daughter every other year as a dependent. We have 2 children together, which he is the residential parent of. He has always claimed.

Our son every year and I claimed our daughter, which was stated in our original divorce decree. However, when my ex-husband realized that our son would be 18 and emancipated as of Aug. 2010, he decided to file papers to the Court, requesting permission to claim our daughter every other year. The Court granted his request, which you'll find a copy attached hereto. So, that is why I claimed Kaitlin for 2008, but not for 2009.

This matter came on to be heard, pursuant to the agreement of the parties herein, as regards the issue of tax exemptions.

Both parties agree that starting with calendar year 2009 the parties' prior order is hereby modified to indicate that for calendar year 2009 the Plaintiff, Brock Mann, shall be allowed to claim Katelin for tax exemption purposes. Starting in calendar year 2010 and all even-numbered years thereafter, the Defendant, Teresa Mann, shall be allowed to claim the minor child, Katelin, so long as she is current in her child support for that particular calendar year. The parties shall then continue to alternate tax exemptions as outlined herein until the minor child becomes emancipated.

For all other intents and purposes, the court's prior order dated April 12, 2004 shall remain in full force and effect.

The Clerk of Courts is hereby directed to close case file and remove from active pending docket. Costs to be paid one half by each party.

Approved and Objections Waived. It is So Ordered.
